

BOCHK Schools Sports Volunteer Scheme – Junior Sports Reporter Training Program

The BOCHK Junior Sports Reporter Training Program has been a great success through the support from schools and students. Students who are good at Chinese writing and interested to be a journalist are invited to take part in a Junior Sports Reporter Training Program; nominated candidates will be selected according to their total services hours and fields of contribution before accredited as a Junior Sports Reporter. Preference will be given to the existing Junior Sports Reporters.

If your school has an interest in the Scheme, please nominate your potential Junior Sports Reporters by completing the nomination form to our office. Training course is given to the nominated Junior Sports Reporters that aims to deliver knowledge of sports journalism. Students can obtain relative Other Learning Experience (OLE) from our scheme, and Junior Sports Reporters with outstanding performance will also have an opportunity to visit the local Media to gain insight into the working practice of professional sports reporters.
